

“Trust me, I’m an engineer!”

A health & safety activity

Health and safety in the workplace is important to help lessen the chance that someone will be hurt or that property will be damaged.

To understand what hazards are in a workplace, it's important to pay attention during safety briefings and to follow any instructions given about using equipment safely.

Instructions

Choose 10 of the 15 images presented below. For each of your choices, consider the scene depicted in the picture, then imagine you are the boss and you've just come across that scene.

What would you say to your employee(s) to let them know they're working unsafely? What instructions would you give them to ensure they can work more safely going forward?
